When Cathie Pelletier saw her name in an issue of The Veteran in 2018 she was surprised. An article by Ron Parsons credited her with finding a veteran. It turned out the veteran had passed away, but Parsons was able to connect with the family. This is what Pelletier does: She looks for veterans. She and her colleagues may be able to help you.

While some names are quite common and difficult to research, Pelletier and her friends are ready to try. They do not charge for their work. You will be sent a questionnaire to help narrow the search parameters. Pelletier and her friends search in their free time. According to Pelletier, they do this service as a thank-you to veterans.
